Mrs. Jenkins' Corner

Having a positive attitude toward others can help to keep your child from participating in bullying. With these ideas, they'll be more apt to be kind to others and want them to feel included. 1. Watch your words. Let your child know you expect them to speak kindly. Before they say something they're unsure about, they could ask themselves if they would want you to hear it. If they overhear another student calling a classmate names or gossiping, they could counter the unkind words with nice ones. ("I hear you're really good at gymnastics.") 2. Accept everyone. Leaving people out on purpose is a form of bullying. Suggest that your child look for chances to make others feel that they belong. For example, they might ask to join someone who normally sits alone on the bus. Or they could invite a new student to play with them during recess. They'll see how good it feels to make someone's day—and perhaps they'll even gain a friend! ♥
